Examples Situations:

- Susan, a CDSMP class participant, shares during her action plan how she was not able to complete her goals because of some family issues she experienced during the week. After the Lay Leader asked a few more questions, Susan started crying expressing her concern for her safety because of physical abuse in her home. The Lay Leader expressed empathy and concern for Susan's safety and directed her to call the National Domestic Violence Hotline (from their list of resources) and asked if she had any other family that she could stay with in the meantime.
- Zack, a CDSMP class participant, always shares with the group during a brainstorm activity how drinking and alcohol are his top ways to cope with problems, distress, and any personal issue he is dealing with. After the second session, the Lay Leader could tell his comments were starting to make some of the other class participants feel uncomfortable. Therefore, the Lay Leader pulled Zack aside after the second session to talk to him about his comments, how his comments are changing the course atmosphere for others in the class, and shared with him concern for his well-being. The Lay Leader then shared with Zack contact information for the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and encouraged him to reach out to them.
